WICHITA MARKETS.

The Receipts of Stock at the Wichits Union Stock Yards for the past 48 Hours Were as Follows: 79 Cattle 132 Hogs, Shipments 52 Cattle, 120 Hogs, WICHITA, May 18. The number of cattle offered today were not sufficient to establish a market. There was some good butcher stuff in, which sold at a strong price, and more of its kind would have found eager buyers at the prevailing prices. Demand for poor, ssy stuff is dull and prices are slow Good stuff sells at steady to strong prices. Attorneys at Law. Office, first stairway east of the Wichita National Bank.

The following are the representative sales of cat-tle at the rards today:

Description.

HOGS. The receipts of hogs were distressingly small today, and as with the cattle offer ings, not large enough to make a market, The few offered sold at steady prices, and ome more would have sold the same; but if the offerings had been liberal it is supposed prices would have been lower in sympathy with eastern markets, which were off 10 cents. Tops brought $4.52%; pigs and lights, $3.25@3.60. All of Satur day's holdovers were sold today.

LIFE IN NORTHERN AUSTRALIA

Community Free from Terror. northern Australia is its sans souci aphis food is properly cooked. Existence is literally out doors, and people live as if burglars were unknown. I have ridden past houses in the early morning, and have seen the verandas littered with books, bric a-brac, walking sticks, hats, lamps and other articles, sell them at just a trifle over the actual and the doors wide open. Night after night cost of making. He found no one who was things are left so, and they are not stolen. willing to do it, Stealing is punished in Queensland with the greatest rigor. A man might be guilty of manslaughter and stand in better odor. They argued that because he wanted to with the authorities than the thief. If it is not to be served for five English, with a sense of freedom borrowed from easier conditions of life, and a knowl--that is ultra democratic. Australia itself moves in ample assertion, but it has also sound sentiment or pairiotism. Its natural tendency is toward hero worship, but the faculty has not scope, for want of heroes, that way. No great crisis has drawn the colonies to-that leads to destruction. Intellectual education, although likely to prove injurious to the physical frame if commenced before the cerebral organization has acquired such a degree of strength as to render it capable of enduring exer-tion, could yet have made considerable progress before the cares of life impede its course. At least the elementary principles should have been imparted, the rest with industry could be worked out afterward.

A directory of woman's work in Indianapolis alone shows them holding the po-sitions of pianists, violinists, elecutionists, orators, physicians, evangelists, artists, commercial travelers, wood carvers, teachers, stenographers, typewriters, bookkeepers and manicures, to say nothing of dress-best men have gone into public life.—Gilbert Parker in Harper's Weekly.

Yenthful Training.

Education should doubtless commence in childhood, when the youthful mind takes an impression from the external circumstances by which it is surrounded. Moral training should begin with life itself, and there can be but little doubt but great and culpable neglect in this particular is chargeable upon many of those to whom the guardianship of the young is intrusted.

What wonder that our jails are filled

Stoteled now to cook and economize. I shall continue at my work. I believe that every high institution of learning should have connected with it a cooking laboratory, and that every agricultural station in America should have a department where the people can go and receive instruction in the art of economy in cooking. This

Besides the establishment of the kitchen on the east side there is a plan on foot to start restaurants in the neighborhood of factories and stores where a large number of persons are employed, and where work.

No man can live very long in the world without discovering the entire unreasonableness of woman. We know her to be very much less selfish than ourselves, and yet every day on the public streets we suf-fer acts at her hands that point inevitably to the conclusion that she absolutely ig-nores the common rights of humanity and erects herself into a derestable ego. Meet her in the middle of a muddy crom-ing and step aside into five inches of benial mud that she may pass along in comfort, and she rewards you by thrusting her well umbrella full in your face. Thank your Bless your soul, she hasn't even seen you! Give her your seat in a car, and she takes it with an acknowledgment of the curtest, and holds it, while for twenty weary min-ntes you stand in suffering silence. Then when she leaves the car does she see that you get the seat you vacated for her bene-fit? Well, hardly! She has never even gianced at you during all that time, and now she departs with never a thought of

Did you ever see a woman mounting the during the rush hours, when time to a man is more precious than gold? Well, there you will see the ego characteristic displayed in a manner that will put your gallanary to the severent test. The stairs are just wide enough to admit of two good sized persons passing each other, but if one of the good sized persons walk fairly in the middle, I will defy the person behind to pass without using bedily violence. A train

She hasn't the ghost of a chance of catching the train, and hasn't any idea of trying. She mounts the stairs with absolute least ure, and of course marches squarely in the middle, and with a tidewise privic swing which fully accounts for all surplus space. Behind her are fifteen men who could catch the train with case if the way were unob structed. But they miss it, of sourse, and madame is as unconscious of their exist-ence as ever.
